U of I Study Shows No Coercion by Unions during Organizing Drives

A study, released this week, done by the University of Illinois School of Labor and Employment Relations shows that no workers have been harassed or intimidated into joining a union by union representatives since the state's "card check" law went into affect in 2003.

In 2003, Illinois became the second state in the country to permit public employees in municipal, county, state and educational institutions to organize a union through the majority sign-up process. Over 21,000 public sector employees have joined unions in Illinois in that six year period.

The study was prompted by business allegations that the federal Employee Free Choice Act's "card check" provision would leave employees open to coercion from union organizers.

The study unequivocally shows that majority sign-up works well for both the employer and employees.

Hannig and Ribley Confirmed by Senate

The Illinois Senate confirmed two key appointees to Governor Quinn's cabinet. Former State Representative Gary Hannig was confirmed, on a vote of 56-0, as the head of the Illinois Department of Transportation (IDOT). Hannig testified before the Senate Executive Appointments Committee that one of his top priorities as Secretary of IDOT is to pass a capital construction bill for road and bridge projects.

Warren Ribley was confirmed by the Senate with an identical 56-0 vote. He will take over as Director of the Department of Commerce & Economic Opportunity (DCEO). Director Ribley also testified before the Senate Executive Appointments Committee and pledged his support for a capital bill to be passed this year.

Obama Sends Congress Details of Budget Plan

President Obama sent Congress his detailed plan for the FY10 budget this week. Included in the plan was a 1% increase for the U.S. Department of Labor. The proposed budget requests Congress to appropriate $13.3 billion to the Department of Labor for FY 2010. The increase will also include $50 million in job training for "green jobs".

The budget also proposes boosting funding for several enforcement agencies the administration believes have been neglected. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration, the Wage and Hour Division and the Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs will see an increase in 1,000 new staff members, including 670 new investigators. The three agencies enforce more than 180 worker protection laws.

Additionally, the proposed Department of Labor budget lays the groundwork for a system of automatic workplace pensions that would operate along side Social Security and assist the roughly 75 million Americans who currently lack employer-based retirement plans.
